

chicago

Wednesday, October 10, 2007

In Her Shoes

Give last year's kicks the boot, and pick up something from this hot emerging line.

As you eagerly anticipate the dropping temperatures and new, cozy fashions that arrive with fall weather, you turn to your closet and extract the season's staple: a basic, knee-high boot. However, to your horror you realize that the shoe you're staring at is very noticeably last year. What's a girl to do?

After allowing yourself a brief "What was I thinking?" moment, we suggest you immediately check out Madison Harding's Fall 2007 collection. Recently featured at our Fresh Faces in Fashion show in New York, Harding's downtown, retro-inspired collection (the brainchild of college pals Hilary Rosenman and Barri Budin) appeals to the tastes of trendsetters few and far between—and it's more affordable than many other cool-looking lines. Whether you prefer simple black or intriguing hunter green, the Woven Leather Boot offers support, comfort, and a fierce fall look that is sure to set your style standard higher than anyone else in your entourage.

Boots aren't really your thing? No problem. Harding's Closed Toe Wedge transforms a summer favorite into a shoe that promises to withstand another season, and comes in every hue from aubergine to chocolate. The best part of all: we can guarantee that by next fall, these pretty items will not scare you out of your closet...although you might be frightened by how much wear they got!

To order a pair of Madison Harding shoes send them an email here with the style number, color and your sizing info.

- Annabel Stephan

see more images